

How Tammany Lost—The New Board of Aldermen

HOW WHOLE CITY VOTED IN DETAIL

Mitchel Apparently Elected From the Very Beginning.

MANHATTAN'S SWITCH

At First It Looked to Be for McCall by Big Plurality.

FUSION STRONG AT END

Tammany Thought for a Time It Had Saved All Save the Mayor.

From the beginning of the returns on Mayor it was apparent that Mitchel was elected, but it looked for a time as if McCall would do so well in Manhattan that the fusion candidate would not have so great a plurality in the Greater City. However, when about 400 districts of the Manhattan total had been counted, Mitchel showed slightly in the lead and was apparently assured of sweeping the five boroughs.

Returns were very slow to come in for various reasons. Splitting of tickets was an obvious cause, inasmuch as Mitchel's associates did not display anywhere near his strength. Where first Metz and Goulden appeared elected Comptroller and President of the Board of Aldermen respectively, by 9:45 P. M., the tide shifted the other way. McMeney's strength in Brooklyn appeared to be the deciding element in getting him through.

This strength was perhaps only the reflection of the remarkable run being made by the head of the fusion ticket, because from the start a big vote for Mitchel was indicated in Brooklyn. The first five districts to report showed about 18,000 plurality, just this soon jumped to about 30,000, and so on up to 40,000 and beyond. At first Metz and Goulden gave evidence of putting up stiff and tuck right in the boughs.

Pounds easily was elected Borough President, leading by a small margin from the start.

Manhattan's first return was not exactly indicative of the outcome. Five strongly Tammany district gave an indicated 62,000 McMeney plurality. Every succeeding group of districts cut deep into this, the figures dropping fast until they swung to Mitchel. The rest of the Tammany ticket bore up well; Goulden at first outpaced McMeney and Metz was going well ahead of Prendergast.

The Bronx showed from the beginning a strong leaning toward Mitchel. The first five districts tended to 8,000 plurality. Metz and Goulden both ran slightly ahead of their fusion rivals at the start.

The Queens vote came in with increasing strength for Mitchel, running up with about one-fifth of the borough to an indication of 11,000 or so. Metz showed greater strength than did Goulden. Goulden was strong from the start, too running well ahead of Smith.

An oddity of the Richmond vote was that the first three districts showed McCall and Mitchel tallying 429 votes each. This is a fifteenth part of the borough. Two more districts showed Mitchel gain out and the first ten districts made Mitchel look to have 10,000 plurality. Ten more districts brought it away back, so that Mitchel led by less than 900.
